

Flower Cascades in Remembrance

May these Cascades of Flowers brighten your day,
Each handmade, blessed flower with something to say.

Some made in thanksgiving for people enduring much
Caring for our health, children, welfare and such.

Some stitched in memory of those who have died,
Within our hearts, they will always abide.

Some beckoning us to uplift over challenges and fears
We have faced together the past months and years.

These Cascades of Flowers vary in shape, design and hue
Reminding us God's most unique and beautiful creation is YOU!

Yarns of Love was inspired to make the cascade of flowers and bring joy to all who see it, by Alison White, who encouraged her fellow villagers of Barley in England to decorate the tower of their church, St Margaret of Antioch, with flowers. We offer our display not only in remembrance of those we have lost during the time of COVID, but also in thanksgiving for all who have cared for others through difficult times and with hope for the future. It has been a lovely project for the Yarns of Love, working together to crochet and knit the flowers, bringing it to fruition in just under two months.
